Public Water Systems in New Hampshire with Naturally Occurring Fluoride

The following public water systems have naturally occurring fluoride. The systems listed are community (residential type) and non-transient non-community (school and workplace types) public water systems. Many of the systems listed have multiple wells, each with a potentially different fluoride concentration. Some wells have little if any fluoride. The maximum fluoride potential of each system listed is noted by a symbol after the system name.

Systems who's raw water fluoride concentration exceeds 4.0 mg/L have treatment or have blended flows to reduce the fluoride concentration to an acceptable level. The treatment type most commonly used to remove fluoride is adsorption onto activated alumina.

The fluoride concentrations of wells can varies with many factors including: season of the year, previous rainfall, duration of previous pumping, and other factors. In addition the fluoride concentration in a water systems can vary in accordance with the owner's choice of which wells are being used. Please contact the system of interest for specific operating conditions and latest water quality data.

If you have an interest in those public water systems that purposely add fluoride, please see DES fact sheet WD-WSEB-5-1 entitled "New Hampshire Public Water Systems that Add Fluoride".
